

Win a Panasonic digital camera

Three prizewinners will be snapping up a superb digital camera from Panasonic, while three runners-up will win a great VideoLogic graphics card.

First prize

Panasonic's KXL-600A breaks new ground in the digital camera field with its slim, lightweight body that fits snugly in the palm of the hand. It is incredibly fast, being capable of taking a shot every half a second.

To ensure perfect results, there's a built-in, manually-controlled grey filter (for bright summer days), and a sophisticated automatic exposure control.

Controls are easy - press the power button and activate the pop-up viewfinder. You can store up to 24 fine-resolution images on the 2Mb memory card supplied or, in normal mode, you can store 96 pictures.

It's not hard to see why this camera has earned the name 'Cool Shot'.

Runners-up

Three runners-up will enjoy a new gaming experience with VideoLogic's Apocalypse 3Dx graphics card. Alongside an existing graphics card, the 3Dx, based on NEC's new PCX2 graphics-processing chip, delivers 3D graphics with the smoothness of an arcade machine.

How to win

Simply answer these questions and complete the tie-breaker.

1. How many pictures can the Cool Shot store in normal mode?
2. At what speed can the Cool Shot take pictures?
3. On what chip is the Apocalypse 3Dx based?

Tie-breaker

I'd keep my cool with a Panasonic Cool Shot because...
