

30. The method according to claim 25 wherein said user action is one of a mouse-over, a mouse click and a mouse double click, which action occurs when a cursor is located over one of said certain objects and which action causes said computer to connect with a location associated with said one of said certain objects.

5

31. A method according to claim 25, wherein certain of said initiable sub-components will result in different actions, one action occurring if the second computer is on-line and another action occurring if the second computer is off-line.