

#33 Setting variable attributes is necessary

Written by Todd Carper

Published Date December 14, 1987

Follow the rules when defining variables in layouts in order to remain upwardly compatible with future versions of 4th Dimension.

When placing variable fields in layouts not used as dialogs you cannot enter into those variable fields.

However, to maintain upward compatibility, be sure that when you specify the variable attributes that you mark the variable as non-enterable if you want the variable to be display only.

