

Q: How do I contact the Usenix organization?

Q: How do I get printed copies of the UNIX manual pages?

A: The standard set of BSD (Berkeley Software Distribution) UNIX manual pages and papers are available from the Usenix Association. They may be contacted at the following address:

USENIX Association

There are several commands on the NeXT Computer (such as niutil), which are not documented in the BSD UNIX manual pages. However, several important papers, which are referenced in NeXT's on-line manual pages can be obtained through Usenix (e.g. Name Server Operations for BIND). BSD manual pages also document many commands not found in the NEXTSTEP software release.

"GBC" bindings. All documents and manual pages have been typeset in order to provide good quality reproduction and all manuals have "bleed tabs" and page headers and numbers to aid in the location of individual documents and manual sections.
