Services - OneVision-Type

The Services menu contains commands that provide services from other applications.

Services are used for starting other applications and easily executing specific program commands. In OneVision-Type, for example, you can select a word from your text and then call the <Define in Webster> service from the Services menu. This will start the application <sup>a</sup>Digital Webster<sup>o</sup>, which will provide the definition of the word.

The collection of commands in the Services menu depends on the applications you are currently working with. Detailed information about this subject is available in the NEXTSTEP User's Guide.
