Error Handling (First Aid)

OneVision contains an error handling module that is designed to ensure that you can terminate the application properly if an internal error occurs. Moreover, an error protocol is written to the console window and to the log file of the operating system.

If it should happen that an error panel with the caption <First Aid - Internal Error> appears, we would like you to send the messages written to the console window to OneVision GmbH. This will help us to analyse the problem and correct the error.

The console window is opened with the <Console> menu command in the Tools menu of the Workspace or by using the keyboard equivalent Command-C. The Workspace has to be active when using this command.
