Select All

paste.tiff ¬

The <Select All> command selects all elements on the current page.
If the program is in the edit mode, the result will depend on the tool being used.

This command is also useful if you want to use an element that lies outside the page and can't be selected. This can be simpler than enlarging the page and then returning it to its original size.
To do this, click this command first, and then deselect the visible elements by clicking on them while holding down the Shift key.
This leaves element outside the page selected. You can then open the Element Inspector (;../Element/ElementInspector.rtfd;;¬), see the element type and name, and change its position to get it back to the visible part of the page.
