

This is an example for a link to a program.

Most computers have the program notepad either in the folder Windows or WinNT, so we are confident that one of the references in the two InfoRecords titled 'notepad' is not "broken" and so displays the well-known notepad icon. On the other hand, at least one of the two should of course show the icon for broken links, the red disk with the white cross inside.

Start this program by clicking once on the icon of the unbroken link.
