1.2 intro

I just love my Amiga. No, really! :-) It's only thing that make ↵ me happy (except my beloved Dorothy & alcohol;-). But Im not the only one who have access to my Amiga. There are some other person that like to sit infront my Amiga, or just login using a telnet deamon.
To protect my source code, e-mails and other junk I have installed a MultiUserFileSystem. Now I can feel a litte bit secure. But Amiga wasn't designed for multiuser pruposes, so there is many backdoors to hack, hang, or kill Your system. One day I have loged in from x86 running windoze on my Amiga. I saw a normal prompt.

Sat Jun  9 20:12:42 GMT 2001
[ opi@bleach /GanjaOS $ ]

So I typed reset. Next thing I saw was a windoze request box. "Connection With Amiga Lost". Yes, I have reboot my Amiga. And every user can run reset aswell. I can ofcourse change rights, and disallow to run it, but I don't like this kind of job.

It was very easy to do a muReset command that can be runned only from root account. Now, any user that type reset in shell should see:

Sat Jun  9 20:17:48 GMT 2001
[ opi@bleach muReset $ ]mureset only root can do that!
[ opi@bleach muReset $ ]

and that's it! If you think I have missed something check

1.5 726patch

Hi! After I Have relased muReset on Aminet, Adam Olivier send me a great idea how to improve muReset! Well it will be no muReset, but a shutdown daemon for Amiga. Now, Im at early stage of developing, but I have compiled a simple patch (726patch) that disallow to reset Your Amiga.

Just try it, and write my back. Also, send some ideas to Adam Olivier <o.adam@francetelecom.com> .

If it's fail to secure Your Amiga, send my a reset command You have used :-)

And keep on waitin' for our shutdown daemon ;-)
