

This agreement allows you to use Hitman Pro (further called: Software) for personal and non-commercial use only. This because of the licence agreements of the antispymware programmes which Hitman Pro uses very gratefully. By accepting this agreement, you agree that you won't sell or rent the Software. Beside that, you agree you won't change the Software, dismantle the Software or try to discover the source code of the Software in any other way. Mark Loman (further called: Author) can't be held responsible for any incorrectnesses or imperfections in the Software. Any imperfections, incorrectly mentioned data or technical imperfections never give you the right to financial compensation. The Author is also not responsible for damage to your computer in any shape or form, caused by negligence or other, while using the Software and the software of third parties. Further, the Author cannot be held responsible for any inaccessibility of the websites from which updates and installation programmes are downloaded. The Author has the right to change the software at any moment or change and/or correct the information provided on the website.