Information about Pacific Gold Coast Corporation, products and services is presented below.

Pacific Gold Coast Corp. was founded by Dr. Yao H. Chu and Dr. Tan-Na Lee in 1988 to develop technologically advanced software for business, education, and government. Initially, the Company has concentrated on developing computer software products for the Microsoft Windows 3.x (16-bit) environment for the PC platform. The Company has subsequently developed in-house the foundation of object-based technologies in computer graphics and multimedia for Microsoft Windows 95 and Windows NT (32-bit) ready to be incorporated into future product releases.

In 1993, the Company released Turbo Browser, the all-in-one file preview, conversion, and manager for documents, graphics and multimedia files. It is a utility software that enables the users to manage their files with on-screen audio and visual association. The Company recognizes the tremendous needs for users to find, filter, and manage document and graphic files due to the explosive growth of electronic information. This led to the development of Advanced Turbo Browser in 1994, which provides comprehensive file searching and preview capabilities and runs under Windows 95, Windows for Workgroups, and Windows 3.1. Most new users learn about the Turbo Browser line of products from reading editorial coverage and retail displays.

During 1993, the Company also developed Color Wheel, a complete object-based graphics software for painting, imaging, and multimedia applications. It is innovative in approach and superior in performance. Major computer publications responded quite favorably upon reviewing the product and the underlying technology.

The Company is the developer and publisher of PGC CASE Graphics, which was first released in 1992 and updated in 1994. It is an object-based system design and diagramming tool used in Computer Aided Software Engineering (CASE). There are PGC CASE Graphics end users in major corporations in most industrialized nations. Most new users know about the product from editorial coverage in professional journals or through database search. PGC CASE Graphics is gaining recognition on college campuses in a joint marketing effort with Richard D. Irwin, a Times Mirror Company.

Pacific Gold Coast is now a recognized name in computer software. The Company will continue to develop leading edge software technology for the business, professional, and home users. The Company's mission is to always provide users with intelligent software that is rich in features and superior in performance. The Company's long term plan is to provide a complete solution for all information management needs.
