DaynaMAIL

DaynaMAIL is an electronic mail system for users of Macintosh and IBM-compatible computers. On a network with a dedicated file server, DaynaMAIL runs on the server and does not require a workstation to be dedicated as a mail server. Based on the MHS (Message Handling Service) protocol from Action Technologies, DaynaMAIL can offer wide area communications with other MHS-compatible applications, such as The Coordinator. Connections can also be made to DEC and IBM mail systems, through MHS compatibility with Soft-Switch. DaynaMAIL is compatible with DaynaNET, NetWare, TOPS and AppleShare (Macintosh version only).

PersonalPhone 1.1

PersonalPhone is an interactive AppleTalk desktop communications program. PersonalPhone is based on the metaphor of a telephone. With PersonalPhone, it is possible to establish an interactive link between two computers to carry on a conversation. Once a link is established, all typing immediately appears in a split window on each Macintosh and background file transfers are possible. No dedicated computer is required with PersonalPhone. PersonalPhone is a desk accessory.
