

Overview

AppleLink® is the information and communications network that gives you a direct line to the Apple community. Using your Apple® Macintosh® computer, you'll have ready access to information about Apple and third-party programs and products. And with AppleLink electronic mail, you can communicate easily with your Apple support personnel and other network users.

AppleLink makes it easier than ever to do business with Apple and the Apple community. It gives you the ability to keep in touch with your Apple sales support representatives, read the latest press releases, look up prices and specifications for Apple and third-party products, send and receive fully formatted disk files, find information about third-party hardware and software for specific needs, get answers to technical questions, learn about software updates and new products, and much more. AppleLink puts all of this information right at your fingertips—whenever you need it.

Communications

The AppleLink electronic-mail service lets you send messages and files instantly to anyone on the AppleLink network. This service eliminates the wasted time—and often, long-distance charges—of trying to reach people by phone. And features such as Automatic Connect and Repeating Connect mean that your AppleLink e-mail can be printed and waiting for you when you arrive at the office.

AppleLink electronic mail makes it easy to send notes to individuals and groups such as:

- Your Apple account executive or sales representative, so you can stay in touch between visits.
- Your systems engineer and marketing support representative, for answers to your technical questions.
- Your local Apple Support Center, to place orders and check on delivery status.
- Independent (third-party) developers of Apple compatible software and hardware, who can provide technical support for their products.

You can also send disk files from your favorite word processor, graphics program, or any other application. For example, a Macintosh user can send Claris MacDraw, Microsoft Excel, or other Macintosh files to any other Macintosh user on the network. Macintosh users can also include graphics in AppleLink messages.

AppleLink Version 6.0

System Requirements

To use AppleLink software, you'll need

- A Macintosh Plus computer (or later model) with an external floppy disk drive or hard disk (hard disk recommended)
- An Apple modem* or other Hayes-compatible modem, or a telephone system that includes data communications capabilities. (The communications scripts may need to be modified to be used with some telephone systems.)

*With the exception of a fax modem.

- AppleLink software (Version 6.0 or later), and an AppleLink account address and password

- System Software Version 4.1 (or later) and Finder[®] Version 5.5 (or later).

Check the Owner's Guide for your computer to find the recommended system software and Finder version numbers.
