

Apple Education Series

Today, education experts concur that for technology to enrich learning, these five key areas must be addressed: choosing digital content; choosing computers; using networks to teach and learn; providing professional development and training; and integrating technology into the curriculum. At Apple, we couldn't agree more—since these experts are validating the discoveries we've made through our Apple Classrooms of Tomorrow (ACOT) research program.

The Apple Education Series is a unique series of kits that include software selected by educators and correlated to national standards that support existing curriculum. Some kits address specific K–12 curriculum areas, others are intended as resources for use across multiple grade levels, and all are designed with the flexibility needed for a wide range of learning situations.

The Apple Education Series was designed with one goal in mind: To make it easier than ever for educators to truly integrate technology into the curriculum.

Kit Features

High-Quality Software

Software in the Apple Education Series (AES) comes from leading educational developers and meets current curriculum standards. Motivating and rich in multimedia, the award-winning software supports productivity, encourages collaborative learning, and promotes problem solving.

Teacher Support Materials

In addition to installation and getting started information, most kits contain model lessons mapped to curriculum standards, tips on assessment, suggestions for promoting the home-school connection, and classroom management strategies.

Staff Development

Training is available for many kits. Based on the Apple Staff Development model, these two-day sessions, which can accommodate as many as 16 educators, use the Unit of Practice approach to teach effective use of the AES software and materials.

Options

Financing

Software, training, and support, as well as hardware, can be financed through the Apple Education Finance Program. To learn more about this program created exclusively for education, call 1-800-255-2652 or visit our web site at www.applemax.com.

Extended Service

Protect your school's computer investment by purchasing selected Apple products with extended warranty service coverage under the Education Extended Service Program.

Technical Support

Apple offers "up-and-running" assistance, compatibility, configuration, and hardware and software troubleshooting.

How to Order

Available to all qualified education customers, the Apple Education Series kits must be purchased according to the following guidelines:

- Decide which AES kit or kits best meet your needs. Except where noted, you must purchase AES kits simultaneously with an Apple computer, using the same purchase order. Up to three different kits can be purchased with each system.
- Although you can purchase your AES kits with any Apple computer, if you select the hardware/software bundle option featured in the table shown on the next page (Kit with iMac), you will receive the AES kits of your choice along with a fully loaded iMac computer. This advanced yet affordable system features a 233-MHz PowerPC G3 processor, 32MB of SDRAM (supports up to 128MB), a 4GB IDE hard disk drive, a 24x-speed (maximum) CD-ROM drive, a built-in 15-inch display (13.8-inch diagonal viewable image size), 10/100BASE-T Ethernet networking support, a high-speed internal modem, AppleWorks integrated productivity software, and more.
