A computer name is a way to identify your computer, whether it's on a network or not. To participate in a network, each computer must have a unique name.