

Cable Car Porter is an authentic British porter as brewed from the early seventeenth century until the late twentieth century. A top-fermented porter, Cable Car Porter harkens back to traditions almost forgotten among beer makers and beer drinkers. The unusual, deep black color, dark-malt taste reminiscent of coffee and chocolate, and the bitter hops give Cable Car Porter a distinct taste. Of course, a distinctive taste requires a distinctive recipe, one that blends traditional ale ingredients such as barley malt, hops, and yeast with the unmalted, black barley that provides the distinct flavor and appearance of Cable Car Porter.
