Creative professionals know how important audio is. Just as important as the visuals. Maybe more so. They know audio — especially music — adds another whole dimension to whatever concept they're trying to convey, whether it be a project of marketing, branding, design or identity, online or off.

Imagine a certain computer company without its distinctive xylophonic four-note tag, and you get the idea.

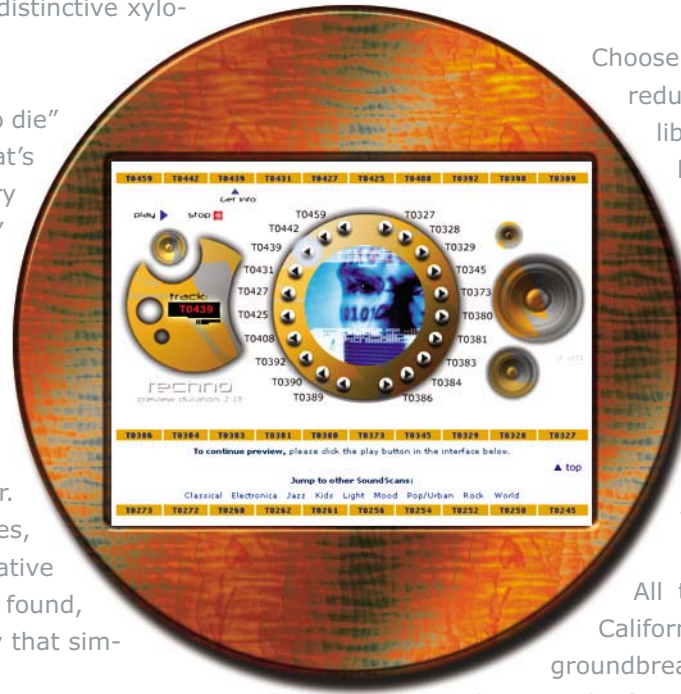

The people at killersound — “where silence goes to die” — know the incredible power of audio, too. That's why, in only three years, its ever-expanding library has made it the answer to creative professionals' dreams and the top portal for world-class-quality, downloadable, royalty-free, customizable music and for sound effects, custom creations, and step-by-step audio tutorials.

Capturing music for use on the Web, CD-ROM, video, television, any medium, could not be easier. killersound has made it so. In fact, in just minutes, a soundtrack that is absolutely perfect for a creative professional's next project can be searched for, found, listened to, licensed and downloaded. It is literally that simple.

Try it. Go to www.killersound.com, where a haunting piece of music draws audio-seekers in and then rewards them with an array of hundreds of royalty-free remixable SoundSets in jazz, rock, techno, electronica, world, light, mood, kids, pop/urban and classical music that can be searched and then listened to via the SoundScan preview tool.

No time is wasted because SoundSets — created by in-house and contract musicians — have been thoroughly described, using such terms as funky, dreamy, uplifting and urgent and offering recommendations like “ideal for background” and “intended to soothe.”

Choose music from new releases, killersound favorites and reduced-fee specials, licensed individually or through all-library volume licensing (the latter can be had for less than traditional rights to one song). Or choose a music CD, downloadable loop and button sounds, or a top-notch collection of sound effects.

killersound designers offer creation of original music, voiceovers, sound effects, sound signatures, navigational audio, and corporate and product identity themes. Tips and tutorials in the Tech Center teach audio integration. Needs are fulfilled, from freelancer to Fortune 500 company.

All this customer satisfaction began in Silicon Valley, California, in 1999. With the resounding success of its groundbreaking work on now-legendary Web sites, killersound became the first to deliver all-media, royalty-free audio in a building-block format that makes it easy to remix and customize.

Go ahead. Kill the silence®.
