

Finding Resources in Files

To create a list of files containing resources of a particular type, use the Find Resources... command in the Find menu. Specify a resource type, and optionally:

A file type to which the search should be restricted such as 'STAK' or 'APPL'.

A specific resource ID or name to which the search should be restricted.

Searching for resources takes some time, so restricting to a single file type will help a lot. On the other hand, restricting by name or ID increases search time.

The interface on this feature will be a little friendly and more refined in a future release, but is quite functional as is.
