

On the introductory difficulty setting, you have plenty of materials and money to develop your country. You should try to plan your future development with reference to the needs of your industry and workers.

For instance, some of your workers eat fruit each turn, but your beginning transport network does not supply fruit. Eventually you will need to establish a port or rail depot that is near some fruit orchards.