

The document's page width is greater than the width of the printable area (according to the Printer's data record) which means "clipping" of the printed page will occur.