

The document's page height is greater than the height of the printable area (according to the Printer's data record) which means "clipping" of the printed page will occur.