Some images are nested, in other words, they are inside another image. This can add to processing time, but clearly makes it difficult to get at if they need editing.