The image is skewed. This can add to processing time as well as alter the quality of the image.