This is just some sample text that I've written to help play with LTextEditView's capability to initially display the contents of a 'TEXT' resource.

Defeat at the castle seems to have utterly disheartened King Arthur...   The ferocity of the French taunting took him completely by surprise and Arthur became convinced that a new strategy was required if the quest for the Holy Grail were to be brought to a successful conclusion.   Arthur, having consulted his closest knights, decided that they should separate, and search for the Grail individually.   Now, this is what they did.   No sooner...

#2

This is just some sample text that I've written to help play with LTextEditView's capability to initially display the contents of a 'TEXT' resource.

Defeat at the castle seems to have utterly disheartened King Arthur...   The ferocity of the French taunting took him completely by surprise and Arthur became convinced that a new strategy was required if the quest for the Holy Grail were to be brought to a successful conclusion.   Arthur, having consulted his closest knights, decided that they should separate, and search for the Grail individually.   Now, this is what they did.   No sooner...

#3

This is just some sample text that I've written to help play with LTextEditView's capability to initially display the contents of a 'TEXT' resource.

Defeat at the castle seems to have utterly disheartened King Arthur...   The ferocity of the French taunting took him completely by surprise and Arthur became convinced that a new strategy was required if the quest for the Holy Grail were to be brought to a successful conclusion.   Arthur, having consulted his closest knights, decided that they should separate, and search for the Grail individually.   Now, this is what they did.   No sooner...

#4

This is just some sample text that I've written to help play with LTextEditView's capability to initially display the contents of a 'TEXT' resource.

Defeat at the castle seems to have utterly disheartened King Arthur...   The ferocity of the French taunting took him completely by surprise and Arthur became convinced that a new strategy was required if the quest for the Holy Grail were to be brought to a successful conclusion.   Arthur, having consulted his closest knights, decided that they should separate, and search for the Grail individually.   Now, this is what they did.   No sooner...

#5

This is just some sample text that I've written to help play with LTextEditView's capability to initially display the contents of a 'TEXT' resource.

Defeat at the castle seems to have utterly disheartened King Arthur...   The ferocity of the French taunting took him completely by surprise and Arthur became convinced that a new strategy was required if the quest for the Holy Grail were to be brought to a successful conclusion.   Arthur, having consulted his closest knights, decided that they should separate, and search for the Grail individually.   Now, this is what they did.   No sooner...